Intensive
self-service use

Flexibility, Simplicity, Ruggedness lead to the ideal unit for self-service copy vending

- allows 2 levels of discount prices
- accepts 8 different coins
- supplied with a key allowing free copies
- designed to be connected to copiers of any make
- standard printer link for printing of selling statistics
- manages 2 copy formats (usable on adapted copiers only)
- can be installed either on the copier front face or on an optional pedestal (see overleaf)

■ Principle

Inserting coins causes money credit then the number of copies to be displayed.

Copies are taken by pressing the “copy” key on the copier (if the credit is sufficient, it is not necessary to insert coins at each copy).

The digital display is updated according to each copy taken.

■ Prices settings and selling statistics

The CM4000 has programming keys allowing the selling prices of the two copy formats to be set and, possibly, discount prices.

Selling statistics are also accessible by means of the programming keys and allow to display (or to print by means of an optional printer):

- . the cumulative turnover,
- . the number of copies for each format,
- . selling prices.

An optional cover with lock allows the cash-box, located inside the CM4000, to be locked. The staff in charge of collection will proceed only by exchanging boxes without having access to the cash.

■ Pedestal

- . The CM4000 pedestal is an interesting optional equipment as it enables the coin mechanism to be perfectly steady, at the correct height and at the best place.
- . Thanks to this equipment independent of the copier, the technician will have an easier installation as well as a better accessibility for copier service.
